BACHRACH

TO
WILLIAM C. HILL

in grateful recognition and appreciation of his twenty years of unselfish service to Central High School, this 1930 edition of the Blue and White is dedicated.

"WILLIE" at an early age (1878) "WILL", a Senior in High School (1890)
MR. HILL, Principal of Chicopee High School (1902)

William Colver Hill

WILLIAM C. HILL started his interesting career in North Hanover, Plymouth County, Massachusetts. His father was the captain of a clipper ship which sailed from Galveston to Liverpool, so that before young "Will" had many summers behind him, he was a sailor with two ocean voyages to his credit.

When the old clippers were replaced by the modern steamships, the family moved to New York City for a year, and Captain Hill piloted a steamship from New York to New Orleans.

The next notable event in our principal's life was his graduation from Malden High School, which had at that time a membership of one hundred and fifty. His chief interest there was the Debating Society, which continues to hold annual reunions.

After high school, William Hill went to Brown University, where he graduated in 1894 after having been awarded in his Junior year the Phi Beta Kappa key, the national symbol of superior scholastic achievement. Later scholastic honors were master's degrees from Brown in 1912 and from Harvard in 1923.

His first position was in northern Maine, where he taught in a private school, after which he served as principal of a small country high school for two years. In 1898, he left northern New England for Washington, Pennsylvania, to become a professor of Latin and Greek in a private school. His native state reclaimed him, however, and Mr. Hill returned to Massachusetts to be principal of the South Hadley High School. He had served in this capacity only four months when he accepted the position in Malden of sub-master in his own Alma Mater, which by this time had increased until it numbered about five hundred and fifty. As sub-master, he taught his favorite subjects, mathematics and English. At the end of two years, Mr. Hill became the principal of Chicopee High School for two more years. In 1904, he went to Milton, Massachusetts, but was obliged to resign his position there after only three months, because of illness, from which he recovered in Minnesota and Iowa.

Later, he held positions in Lewiston, Maine, and in Chelsea, until in 1910 he accepted the principalship of Central High School. During his twenty years at Central, he has undertaken much important educational work among which have been his presidency of the New England Association of Colleges and Secondary Schools, his fourteen years' service as one of the four New England school representatives of the College Entrance Examination Board, and his present membership in the National Council of Education in the National Education Association, where he is one of the three representatives of all the high schools in the United States. These positions he has filled with distinction for twenty years,—twenty years of hard and earnest effort to better Central; twenty years of keeping this "the best school in the solar system"; twenty years of inspirational leadership. Under his administration, Central has become nationally known as a school that places scholarship first. Mr. Hill deserves our respect, affection, and gratitude. Long may he reign!

Song of the Class of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$

Sung to the tune of "Dear Old Pal of Mine"

Central we must leave you, for 'tis time to go.
Still our hearts with gladness ring.
All the joys we knew in three years gone by
Make us raise our hearts to you and sing.

Not only is it gladness that we feel today,
For there are tears in our eyes.
But through them we'll smile; to you we will say,
"You've made us, and your mem'ry we will prize."

CHORUS

Oh, how we love you, dear old Central High.
And though it's time for us to say good-bye,
With a love so tender, always we'll remember
Sweet memories of dear old Central High.

History of the Class of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$

From his canopied bed with black and white hangings, the Spirit of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$ with a weak voice calls Memory, bidding her entertain him for a while. To his command Memory replies that she has some pictures of his youth, and thereupon presents the first one, a picture of excited Freshmen in a room from which come shouts, much rustling of paper, and general confusion. The Spirit of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$ tries frantically to recall the incident. It is the hotly contested election of President Moulton, Vice-President A. Smead, Secretary Kirkland, Treasurer I. Smith, and Member-at-Large Bedrossian. This picture fades and a picture of an eager group of athletic girls clustered about an august personage armed with a silver cup takes its place. After a few moments' suspense, a cheer raised for the Freshmen dies out, giving place to noise furnished by the orchestra at our IA Social, where we freshmen, thronging the sidelines, learn from the upper-classmen how dancing is done at C. H. S.

Memory pauses here, but continues. A group of eager students are gathered in a hall. "Meeting please come to order," says reelected President Moulton. "We will now discuss plans for the 2B Social." This picture vanishes, and a clamoring group around a punchbowl comes to view against a background of dancing couples. As this grows faint, lusty shouts greet the unfurling of a unique black banner outlined in white, which is shown to the assembled class. The scene shifts to the gym office where a brilliant silver cup with "1929 $\frac{1}{2}$ " once more engraved on it occupies the place of honor. This becomes dim, and an evergreen border, a lighted

Christmas tree in the center, a floor crowded with dancing alumni and undergraduates take its place. The Junior Prom!

From this, Memory hastens to an even more interesting group of pictures. There flashes on the screen a small room where a reader announces to a scribbling group, "President—Lanckton, Lanckton, Tait, Lanckton, Carman, Lanckton, Lanckton—" Next, a very inexperienced pseudo salesgirl hopefully holding up dresses to possible customers appears. Nearby, others attempt to sell high shoes or baby clothes. This is followed by a colorful scene with pennants flying, collars wilting, punch disappearing, couples sweltering. Oh, yes, the Military Dance and a warm evening!

Now comes a picture of slightly later date. First dance of the season, glamorous Jardin Royale, snappy orchestra, Senior's treat, good dance? Why shouldn't it be? After this there comes into view a lone car manned by spirited Centralites proclaiming to the world in general and Main Street in particular Central's victory to which '29 $\frac{1}{2}$ contributed several illustrious huskies. Then the scene changes to girls crowding at a mirror, boys seated three or four to a chair, a room tense with excitement. "Next" Just class pictures. With the fading of this appear pretty girls in trailing evening gowns, handsome boys in tuxedos, along with shuffling feet. Soothed at last, the Spirit of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$ goes to sleep to dream of this Central Prom.

Presentations of the Class of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$

I. We're going to begin the class presentations with something big. Mr. Hill to the platform, please! Good-afternoon, Mr. Hill. To prevent further exertion on your part in teaching the in-coming freshmen your favorite expression, we have decided to present you with this sign, ("No one has a right to do that which, if everyone did, would destroy society.") Remember this as a gift from the Class of '29 $\frac{1}{2}$. We hope it will prove helpful to you.

II. Now we call on the next most important person in Central, namely, Arthur Leroy Lanckton, President of '29 $\frac{1}{2}$. Here's a pair of roller skates, Art, so you can dash around to your various and sundry meetings and incidentally get home when your car breaks down.

III. Now, we have something very interesting. Will Margaret Mitchell please come forward? (Roy dashes off the stage; then comes back, saying: "Has she gone?")

IV. Will Faxon Chapin please step forward? Introducing the best dressed man in '29 $\frac{1}{2}$, Faxon D. Chapin. Faxon, so that your clothes may always look as nice when you're outside of school as they did when you were here, we present you with this whisk-broom and flat iron. Make use of them often.

V. Will Bob Steup please step forward? Folks, here's '29½'s three-letter man. To enable Bob to keep in practice when he's outside of school, we present him with these things: a peach-basket, old glove, and football shoes.

VI. Oyce-jay Irkland-kay, please come forward. How-do-you-do, Oyce-jay? We've heard about your numerous activities and we would like to help you in some way. We present you with this aeroplane with which you may more quickly accomplish your trips to and from meetings.

VII. Genevieve Millar, to the platform! Gen, it's been known here and there around school, that you have difficulty in keeping the curl in your hair; so we're going to give you these little curlers, hoping that you will have no further trouble with your hair.

VIII. Harold Logan wanted—to the platform, please. Boys and girls, take a good look at this boy. You may never see another like him—cutest boy of '29½. Harold, so that you may always keep "that school-girl complexion" we present you with this cake of Palmolive soap.

IX. Lillian Price, please step forward. Seeing you're the class orator of '29½ and have won so many cups at Central, we take great pleasure in presenting to you this wonderful cup as a final remembrance of the school (a tea cup). We hope this will be as useful as the others.

X. Now, ladies and gentlemen, comes Frank Lange. Frank is really a very charming boy as you all know, but the class has unfortunately elected him the class pest. We know Frank won't mind if we give him this insect powder, the best grade available, and we sincerely hope it will do some good.

XI. Will Don Tait please step to the platform? Boys and girls, take a look at Don. He's a very popular senior. In fact he's the class sonny-boy. We're going to give this flaming red tie to Don and this little whistle to keep him out of mischief.

AVIATRICES ESTABLISH NEW ENDURANCE RECORD

Springfield, Mass., April 1, 1953—Pilots Lillian Price and Isobel Smith descended today after spending the past four months in the clouds. The pilots, both graduates of the Tait School of Aviation at Feeding Hills, established a new record for endurance flying of twenty-eight hundred and ninety-six hours, thirty-three minutes and nine seconds. Thus the record of twenty-five hundred and two hours, seventeen minutes, and sixty two seconds—set two years ago by Army pilots, Glendon Shaw and Clinton Richards, was smashed.

The women were forced to descend when the last of the six engines of this huge Jager-built plane gave out. They were greeted on landing at the Springfield Air-port by a throng of admirers headed by Mayor John T. Quirk who presented them with the keys to the city. The luncheon and celebration afterward were held at the Hotel Moore.

NEW INDUSTRY OPENED BY ENTERPRISING YOUNG BUSINESS WOMEN

Springfield, Mass., April 1, 1953—Opening to-day is the advertising establishment of Miss Martha Pomerantz, which is the beginning of a totally new industry in this city. Another member of the concern is Miss Dora R. Barrett, who manages the financial affairs of the firm, while Miss Thelma Macfarlane looks after the advertising business.

MORE LAND LEFT TO BOY SCOUT CAMPS

Springfield, Mass., April 1, 1953—It was learned today that a donation of two hundred-fifty acres of land on the shore of Mill River was made to the Springfield Boy Scout Association by Miss Sara Partridge of East Longmeadow. This tract added to the adjacent tract of one hundred fifty acres donated last week by Mr. Henry Clay, wealthy Real Estate dealer, makes an ideal site for a camp.

Scoutmaster John W. Carman reports that the camp will be opened July 1, if arrangements are complete by that time.

REMAINING HALF OF JURY PICKED FOR VANDERBILT CASE

Springfield, Mass., April 1, 1953—The remaining six members of the jury for the Vanderbilt case were picked today. They are the following: Bernard Sullivan, toothpick manufacturer, Arthur Lanckton, Jr., usher at the Paramount Theatre, Faxon Chapin, window-trimmer at Charles Hall's, Klara Kalista, typist at the Massachusetts Mutual, Yetta Zona, hairdresser at Steiger's, and Florence Del Dotto, private secretary.

Since these six complete the twelve honest men and true, the trial will begin forthwith.

EXPEDITION LEAVES FOR SOUTH AFRICA

New York, N. Y., April 1, 1953—A scientific expedition led by Robert A. Steup, Ph. D., with assistant John Tracy and John Phelon, left today for South Africa, where an extensive search for the Missing Link will be made. The Missing Link, or, as it is scientifically called, "hominus apus," is believed to be still extant in those parts. Away back in 1929, the Missing Link was believed discovered in Springfield, Mass., but on further examination it proved to be a Central High School student in football uniform.

NEW TAX BILL PROPOSED BY SENATOR

Washington, D. C., March 31, 1953—Senator Richard M. Talbot of Massachusetts brought before the Senate today, a new tax bill which lowers the rate on talcum powder, incense, sachets, and shoe-trees. This he claims, will aid the working-man in his struggle for existence. This bill was strongly contested by Myron D. Stepath, Senator from Omaha, Nebraska, who maintains that such a bill would be detrimental, since the working-man should not be allowed to exist anyway. A fiery debate was in order which ended, sad to say, in a draw.

NEW THEATRE OPENED

Springfield, Mass., April 1, 1953—Last night was memorable in the history of Springfield, for it marked the opening of "The Crystal Castle," R. M. Abrams' new $10,000,000 theatre. The structure, which was built by the G. T. Mayforth Construction Co., occupies the block next to the Cohen and Feldman Department Store. The theatre is of the most modern type, and among the improvements is a staff of usherettes including Zillah Green, Katherine Hassler, Irma Johnson, and Alice Martin. The program for the opening night was most unusual, being the motion picture "Fools of Fate" featuring Edward Talbot and Shirley Warner. Flowers were presented to the management and thus an epic in the theatrical world was completed.

FASHION NOTES BY OUR CORRESPONDENT

At a fashion opening Tuesday in the salon of Mlle. Beauregard, fashions soon to be the rage of two continents were displayed. Two evening gowns with appropriate accessories were exhibited by Miss Virginia Krause. Some very radical departures in sportswear were shown to advantage by Miss Beatrice Johnson, among them being a tennis frock which swept the ground all around. This frock is recommended for the care and upkeep of private tennis courts.

Among styles noticed at other fashion exhibits were a new style dinner dress, and a fur lined skiing costume. These were effectively modeled by Miss Ruth Briskin.

NURSE TELLS OF EXPERIENCES

Springfield, Mass., April 1—Nurse Carol Morrison told here today of her experiences in the Northampton State Hospital for the Insane. Among her patients, says Miss Morrison, was a certain Mr. Roy Chapin, who fancied himself a motorboat expert. At times, imagining himself in danger, he will order other patients out of his way, meanwhile frantically twirling an imaginary steering-wheel. The only person with a soothing effect on him is his wife, the former Miss Barbara Henning of this city.

CHESTER CARON ARRESTED IN
HOROWITZ CASE

Springfield, Mass., April 1.—The latest development in the Horowitz hit and run case led this afternoon to the arrest of Chester Caron of this city. Miss Alda Stuart, employee of Bleau's department store, who, returning home from late work on the evening of the thirtieth, discovered the body of Irving Horowitz, prominent grocer, lying in the gutter at the corner of Court and Main Streets, today identified Caron as the driver of the car which passed her on Main Street as she approached the scene of the accident. The arrest of Caron, who is an employee of the Leo Goodman chain restaurants, was performed by Police-Sergeant Robert Horne. Leonard Sisitsky, M.D., who performed the autopsy, informed Detective Richard Butler of the Anger's Detective Agency, who is in charge of the case, that Horowitz must have been killed instantly when struck by the car. The body is at present at the Ernest Hunter Undertaking Parlors where the funeral will be held tomorrow. The suspect admits his presence on Main Street at the time of the accident but disclaims all knowledge of the affair.

DOROTHY CROCKETT
 NANCY RUSSELL

Prophecy on the Prophets

In the fall of 1940, while motoring near Cleveland, Ohio, I noticed many large brilliantly-colored signs, which advertise a lecture on "The Evil Influence of Modern Movies," to be given by a Miss Dorothy Louise Crockett. At once the name recalled memories of my former classmate at dear old Central High School; but the subject of the lecture seemed so alien to the "Dot" Crockett I had known that I did not allow myself to hope of seeing her again. However, my curiosity prevailed, and I planned to attend the lecture that evening.

Leaving my hotel early, I arrived at the lecture hall in plenty of time to secure a seat near the platform. As soon as the lecturer came forward to speak, I immediately recognized my former schoolmate, and impatiently settled back in my seat to wait for the lecture, which, by the way, was very interesting and instructive.

At the close of the program. I hurried forward to the platform to greet "Dot," and, although we had much to talk about, my first question was, "Dot, what on earth made you change your mind, and turn against the movies?"

Her happy face clouded over with sadness and she replied dismally. "It is a long, sad story, but I will tell you. You will be surprised to learn that my former friend, Nancy Russell, was the cause of this change in attitude. After we had graduated from college, Nan and I decided never to marry, but to live in a bungalow in the country, with a parrot and collie for company. For several years we lived quietly and happily. Occasionally we went to a nearby village to the movies, and especially when Nan knew that William Boyd was billed to appear, for he was her favorite actor.

One evening, being much impressed by his latest picture, when we returned from the village, she decided to write him a letter in the privacy of her own room. It was after midnight when she had finished it, and she had mailed it before I was up in the morning. Several days later, Nancy went into ecstasy over a personal reply, and from that time, began a regular correspondence, which, to make a long story short, culminated in one of Hollywood's most brilliant weddings. Many distinguished personages and beautiful movie stars attended the ceremony, and after a large reception, the happy couple left on a round-the-world trip.

Nancy had deserted me for a movie star! I was hurt but I determined to help people profit by my disillusion; so that is why I am lecturing against the movies." ISOBEL SMITH

Will of the Class of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$

We, the Class of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$, in the year of our Lord one thousand nine hundred and thirty, of the foundation of Central High School, the eighty-eighth, and of the rule of William the first the twentieth, being in full and complete possession of our faculties of mind and body, yet considering the uncertainties of this life and the propinquity of the next, do hereby declare, asseverate, and proclaim this document to be our last will and testament.

Article I: We hereby appoint Miss Kingsley and Miss Murphy as our legal executors. All provisions, as herein stipulated, are by them to be duly executed.

Article II: Art. Lanckton, our handsome, strong-hearted class president, the perfect politician, able, honest, and fearless—leaves to Stewie King his popularity and his ability to get out the feminine vote.

Article III: Mr. Robert Steup, eminent scholar and athlete, who has formed many delightful acquaintanceships among our faculty during an all too brief stay of four and one half years, sorrowfully leaves Central to pursue eagerly the course of higher learning in some institution where he will be received with open arms as a brilliant thinker, at a time when all too many entrants are influenced towards the pigskin rather than the sheepskin. Realizing how teachers are encouraged and inspired by a familiar presence, he leaves Ted Karp as a permanent substitute.

Article IV: Leonard Sisitsky leaves his delicate mannerisms and graceful ways to the willowy Raymond Gelfman.

Article V: The cutest girl in the class, Vera Arnold, leaves her typically feminine walk to Sidney Hechler who already has it down to perfection.

Article VI: Those wavy blonde locks of Harold Logan, that have long been a magnet for all susceptible young female hearts, have been declared a menace to unprotected damsels, and will be cut off and distributed among Messrs. L. Thiem, A. Hyfantis, and M. Ebbins, who could hardly be considered dangerous under any conditions.

Article VII: Miss Nancy Russell, that aged dame of many winters, whom the years have made wise in the ways of this wicked world, leaves her knowledge of life and its vicissitudes to the unsophisticated freshmen.

Article VIII: William, Big Bill, McRae, our famous soccer player—or have you heard of him?—leaves his wild delight in wantonly squandering his pennies to all other Scotchmen who might benefit by it.

Article IX: Arppie Nahikian leaves her quiet manner and soothing voice, so well appreciated by Miss Murphy, to Olivia Smith, just to see how long teachers can hold out under the strain of their combined forces.

Article X: Marcus Strong, our dashing class shiek, leaves his manly appearance, melodious voice, delicate sense of humor, poise, calmness, and ability as a public speaker to Donald Crowther.

Article XI: Phyllis Beauregard, class teacher's delight, leaves her powers for charming instructors' hearts by her diligent devotion to duty and graceful manner of reciting to Francis Whitefield who already has a just claim to the honor of teacher's pet.

Article XII: And while we're leaving things, we wonder how much money has been left Roy Chapin through his activities as Central's super-salesman.

Article XIII: Jean Hodges leaves to all dashing brunettes the comforting assurance that according to the well known saying concerning blondes, all Central's males do not seem to be gentlemen.

Article XIV: Meyer White and Frank Lange, class halfwits, tied for class wit, leave the product of their gigantic intellects to Milton Palmer, who will there find a much needed source of inspiration for the painful witticisms with which he endeavors to lighten the weary monotony of study periods.

Article XV: To William Kammerman, the neat little fellow with the curly hair, Ellison Taylor, class Buddy Rogers, relinquishes his swaggering way with Central's women, and his powers for captivating maidenly hearts in general and Robenia's in particular.

Article XVI: Eunice Reich, Central's versatile actress, is bequeathed the beautiful natural blush of tiny Freddie Hertzmark, a gift which she can use to advantage in the successful portrayal of girlish roles.

Article XVII: It gives us great pleasure to announce that D. Winthrop Tait, class sonny-boy, leaves his power of entertaining women to Buddie Todd, who may use a different technique, but gets there just the same.

In witness whereof we have signed, published and declared this instrument to be our last will and testament on this twenty-fourth day of January, 1930.

Signed: ARTHUR LANCKTON

Subscribed, sealed, published and declared by the above named president as and for the last will and testament of the Class of 1929 $\frac{1}{2}$ in the presence of us who, at his request, have signed as witnesses to the same.

History of the Class of 1930

Diary of a Member of 1930

AUGUST, 1927:

I'm going to High School—to Central! Ah, at last my dreams are fulfilled. What an impression I shall make! 'Twill be an excellent opportunity to scatter the pearls of wisdom I have garnered during the long years of my life. Wait and watch my astounding and immediate progress.

SEPTEMBER, 1927:

What earthquakes, tornados, cataclysms, have befallen me! My ego has been suddenly and efficiently deflated. My lowly state is indeed pitiful. Methinks I am not making the anticipated impression. Ah me! such is life. With what derision and scorn was I received and what disgraces did I suffer! But wa't, I will have my revenge.

OCTOBER, 1927:

Life has regained somewhat of its sweetness. Our class has reared its noble head and has shown what true endeavor can bring as a reward. It led the school on the honor list! Now, I feel somewhat consoled. But oh, my desperate struggle against the dismal tides of fortune in the shape of that document of judgment commonly known as a report card.

DECEMBER AND JANUARY, 1927:

Great doings in the Class of 1930! We have come to the all-important question of magistrates. Without doubt this most extraordinary group (Why extraordinary? Because it has once again shown its prowess—hark! all of ye—by triumphantly winning the chorus contest), as I wrote before, this most extraordinary and remarkable body politic of two hundred and fifty constituents, had need of responsible officials. This power is now vested in Fred Hillman, president; Josephine Hamilton, vice-president; Harold O'Neal, secretary; Victor Pollock, treasurer; and Barbara Sellars, member-at-Large. Our capable faculty advisers are Miss Davis and Miss Kagwin.

FEBRUARY, 1928:

We are now full-fledged Centralites. And what a heavenly feeling it is to lord it over these puny freshmen! One feels like a ruler of the universe (until one sees a junior, and what is even more disastrous to one's pride, a senior.) But optimism will destroy this unworthy and degrading attitude of self-abasement with rosy thoughts of future years on the heights.

MARCH, 1928:

Blue and gray, come to stay. You never knew I was a poet, did you, Diary? What's that?—

Blue and gray are without doubt the best colors I could mention. Why? They're our class colors, of course, next best to Central's blue and white. Oh yes, we're going to have a social. And what a social it will be. Everyone's just brimful of enthusiasm about it!

JUNE, 1928:

Diary, you remember what I told you about the social? Well, that was the best social Central's gym has had the opportunity to witness. No bashful swains and shy maidens there. And we won the chorus contest again. I don't like to boast you know, but really, don't you think our class is a pretty good one, Diary?

Ho-Hum, I wish vacation would hurry up and arrive.

SEPTEMBER, 1928:

Juniors, Juniors, rah, rah, rah! We are progressing in this world. Step by step, inch by inch, our standing in the social world is rising. We all think we'd look attractive and above all else, dignified, with the halos of seniordom about our worthy heads.

OCTOBER, 1928:

Elections again, Diary dear, and I must tell you the new staff of officers who must keep a watchful eye on the welfare of our class. They are Don Crowther, president; Prentice Miller, vice-president; Kathlyn Holloway, secretary; Richard Pranik, treasurer; and Bobbie Sellars, again member-at-large.

On the whole, we are getting much more proficient. Each one of us has learned the essentials of sliding into one's seat at the last moment possible, and sliding out of them sooner than one would believe within human attainment. Why, the majority of us have even learned to recite without doing any homework.—Perhaps I shouldn't have said recite, but attempt to discourse upon the subject in question. Yes, that does sound more reasonable.

We are to hold an 11B social on November 16. This is going to be good, for 1930 has had experience (ahem!) in successful enterprises.

DECEMBER, 1928:

I'm beginning to enjoy school—wa't a minute, wait a minute, I didn't say homework; I said school. In spite of daily starvation periods, wherein I munch mournfully on the remains of a cracker, my head filled with dreams of chicken, solid ice cream, and so forth, I'm learning the secret of a happy and contented life: "Don't worry about anything, let alone studies—that's not your affair, it's the teachers'."

Did I tell you how the 11B social came off? Splendidly, splendidly, my dear thing. Our reputation as a class for giving peppy dances is firmly established.

MARCH, 1929:

How time flies! Just three more months and I will legally be a senior! Oh joy! But between now and then comes our Junior Prom. The committee has already been appointed for that and also one for the gift to the school, presented to the graduating class. Onward, my illustrious class, and keep up the good work!

JUNE, 1929:

Whew, it's hot. I'm dragging around like a wilted head of lettuce, but judging from the similarly gay appearance of others, I gather that I am not an exception. We are soon to be raised to the high estate of seniority where we may caper as we please under the mask of dignity and intelligence. Our Junior Prom was held on May 10 and was a rousing success. The treasury now seems to us like the U. S. mint.

OCTOBER, 1929:

I have grown immeasurably (in importance). With what lordly words do I counsel the poor underlings and instruct them in the ways of wisdom. But really I must study this year, for College Board exams are looming up like mountains in front of me. But what with the million and one things to do!

This year's elections went forward with great dispatch and after a close contest the official staff is Don Crowther, president; Elizabeth Mendenhall, vice-president; Kathryn Holloway, secretary; Will Starr, treasurer; and Bobbie Sellars, member-at-large. The teachers who are guiding us through the labyrinth of our senior year are Miss Davis and Mr. E. E. Smith.

How I adore football games, in spite of the fact that I come home with a throat simply raw and the rest of me exhausted from strenuously trying to help push the ball over! Yes, it's a grand old sport, all right. Do I hear deafening applause?—I do.

DECEMBER, 1929:

I've been so rushed I haven't even been able to jot down a word. 1930's Ways and Means committee gave a Military Bridge. It was packs of fun. I hereby recommend it to any and all of the following classes. I went as a means of passing away a dull afternoon and plunged into a vortex of excitement. Came home so visibly enthusiastic that I was queried as to the cause. To keep up it's reputation for unique ideas, 1930 took Friday, December 13, as the date for their 12B dance and proceeded to produce the "Hoodoo Hop"; unparalleled in originality.

FEBRUARY, 1930:

Gracious, my head is swimming—committee, committee, committee. Seniors certainly know the process of electing committees. At least 1930 should, after the quotation committee, nominating committee, dance committee, and so on, were elected.

I never believed all these lurid tales circulated about the sad and customary flatness of seniors' purses, but I certainly do now. Trying to make my allowance stretch over the huge multitude of things I should pay, contribute, and subscribe to, is slowly giving me nervous prostration. Speaking of that illness, I fell, a disillusioned victim to it, when confronted with the proofs of my ignoble visage. Happily I was not alone in my abject misery, which fact supported me somewhat, even though it was necessary for me to again present a smirking mien to that instrument of torture, the camera.

We have had our senior dance. The "Club Harlem" opened the dance season with roped-off tables, special features, a popular orchestra, and all the accoutrements of a real night club.

APRIL, 1930:

I wonder how many steps I have climbed in this building since that far distant day when I entered these sacred portals. I shudder to think of the number.

Next on our program is "Elijah," then Class Day, the Banquet and as a triumphant finale, the Senior Prom, 1930's Senior Prom, OUR Senior Prom. Just think!

JUNE, 1930:

I'm somewhat sad today, Diary, though I've had the gayest sort of a time this last month. Now I have come to the last chapter of my three years of high school life, and the book is closed, a book which will often be opened, however, and which contains many delightful remembrances and reminders of a joyous time, in spite of the remarks to the contrary that I have made in the past. New vistas are opening before us, and as always, we are looking forward into the future. Well, here's good luck to you, dear old Central, and we hope that the many others whom you will shelter under your wings in the future will appreciate your benefactions as we do.

The End of my Three Year Diary.

BETTYE PRISCILLA BOESHAAR
SHERWOOD ADAMS

Prophecy of the Class of 1930

Into the cemet'ry walked a pair,
A handsome youth and his lady fair.
They started to talk of this and that;
Just then the wind blew off his hat.
It lighted on a grave quite new,
They tried to catch it, but away it flew;
She sat down to watch him chase,
And noticed on the stone's white face
A carven verse. She called to him;
Together they scanned the tombstones grim.

I noticed here that Edson Dorman
Before his death became a Morman.
And wedded, though it seem a jest,
Both Velma Farrell and Frances West.
And then to make the trio go,
He took to wife that sweet K. Coe
Whose high school life had been so gay
She was glad to end her days that way.
And right beside them rests in peace
Alice Martin who used to fleece
The guests who came to her nightclub gay
To see and hear Charles Hathaway.
Who sang and danced with Catherine Cotter
Until his rival Steenberg got her.
For Steenberg was a butcher bold,
And stuffed his pockets full of gold.
They say he got his start in life
From Vernice Cook, his former wife,
Who'd made a fortune doing canning
In company with Helen Manning.
The next one must have been a gay duck,
I see his name was Chester Hayduck.
He ran a talking picture show
And acted for the radio.
Although it seems that men know now
His wise cracks came from Herbert Howe,
Who struggled writing for the funnies
Without acquiring many moneys.
And close beside him rest the bones
Of auto-racer William Jones,
Who, fast as he was, was unable to dodge
The lightning speed of Floyd Hodge.
It seems they crashed on a ballroom floor
Run by the popular Roger Moore.
Floyd was dancing at topmost speed
With an actress known as Althea Smead,
And William was only standing around,
But now he rests safe in the ground.

A little further beneath that vine
Is all that remains of Oscar Fine.
An insurance agent, it seems, was he
With Theodore Karp and Company.
He made a million and then for a lark,
He spent it all on Eleanor Clark.
And he and she and Milton Corey,
And Doris Fletcher won much glory
By writing their lives for story books,
Which were later published by Manning
Brooks.
They all made merry about the town
Till brought to order by Robert Brown,
A constable fearless, who won much honor
By serving a warrant on Henry Connor.

It seems that Henry and Tony Cirillo
Went out one night to steal a pillow.
And win a bet with Melvin Lipovski
Who wanted a gift for Mary Koslovski.
But Robert caught them e'er they'd really begun
And hailed them both to Kieran Dunn.
A judge was he and quite a man.
(He later married Marcella Moran.)
He fined young Fine and his companions nimble
And sent Fine home to Ida Kimball,
Because she proved to be his wife.
And that was the end of Fine's gay life.
And here is buried in a Prince Albert
A man about town named Raymond Jalbert.
And Madeleine Erlanson who, so they say,
Was a beauty specialist in her day.
And next to them is Lawyer Gloth
Who married a widow, Irene Lamothe.
They say she rejected Francis Barnes
Because she couldn't believe his yarns,
And later was captured by Israel's charms.
And look at this! Alas, poor Yorick
For who should it be but Emily Borek.
She studied psychology with Lucy Lee
And carried their fame across the sea.
And though her death appeared quite sudden,
'Twas really due to Constance Ludden.
The truth of this is hard to discover
But it is thought that Emilie's lover,
One Armig Kandoian, a lusty woodsman,
Had jilted Constance for Harriet Goodman,
And later aroused by Emilie's charms
Had torn himself from Harriet's arms.
And Constance seeing that all were gypped,
And being, 'tis said, a trifle hipped
On revenge which, due to high school days,
From reading Hamlet had become a craze,
And since Harriet had always been her friend,
She deeply regretted to see her end
Her youthful days as Armaig's toy,
And so she up and shot the boy.
But Emilie all this time, they say,
Was teaching psychology far away,
And when she learned of Kandoian's crimes,
She presently took to writing rhymes,
And like Ophelia went raving mad,
Which shows that reading Hamlet is bad.
And it was Joseph Guarnera who found
That in a brook by his farm she was drowned.

Eunice Radner was the belle
Of the town. Her friend Spindell,
Equally famed as a singer
Of mammy songs, was the bringer
Of death to hapless Joseph Stookins,
The popular chef of the Hotel Dookins.
They say, you know, that every cook
Tastes his food. Without a look
Into the soup Joe dipped his spoon;
Which a moment before Marie had strewn
With arsenic, strychnine, and lead.
Thereupon he fell down dead.
Time and tide wait for no man, they say.

Prophecy of the Class of 1930 (Continued)

Nor did they for Ruth Pepin and Henry Clay.
 Together they died on the ocean vast;
 The captain Albrow clung to the mast.
 Here lie John Phelon and William Reed,
 The farmers. They planted tomato seed
 And corn did sprout. Here, John O'Neil,
 No kinsman of the famed Eugene;
 Johnny left this vale of weal
 And woe long after Gene was seen.
 Katherine Flynn was an aviatrix,
 And with the smart set she did mix.
 She made an outside loop one day
 And never saw another May.
 Upon this tombstone is the motto:
 Donna Davis won much in lotto.
 Before she died she took up dice,
 But gave it up because 'twas a vice.
 Baking was the hobby of H. Coven.
 He made pies and cakes in his oven.
 One day he forgot to put in flour
 Which made his pastry very dour.
 Downhearted was he at this mistake,
 And never baked another cake.
 Victor Pollock, a poet of rank,
 Died from poison which he drank
 From a bottle prepared by Frances Crane,
 Who only wished she could do it again.
 For she was jealous of Victor's talent,
 And thought young Heckler much more gallant.
 Be a use he wrote in a serious vein,
 Which was more pleasing to Frances Crane.
 In fact he composed with many a sigh
 A history of Central High,
 Recounting the fame of Madeline Hayes
 Who gained her money in devious ways,
 For she established a goldfish farm
 Where Shirley Keefe kept fish from harm
 By showing them pictures of Philip Hart
 Who at Central was thought so smart.
 Philip's beauty had increased with years
 Until the sight of him moved girls to tears,
 But caused the goldfish to laugh with glee,
 And that won fame for Shirley, you see.
 All this gave Heckler ideas for his book,
 And in it now you'll find, if you look,
 An account of the life of George Hiltbold,
 Who became a jewelled gangster bold,
 And fought his way with many a man
 To win the love of D. McCann.
 His life would have been a cinch
 Had it not been for Marion Lynch,
 Who single-handed with just a razor,
 Which had been lent to her by Hannah Mazer,
 Waylaid the desperate George one night
 And really gave him quite a fright
 Before she led him away to jail.
 But at this point ends Heckler's tale.

Ah, here alone lest we forget
 Are the mourned remains of Janet Odette
 Along with the bones of little Jack Porte,
 Singing and dancing were their forte.
 And here beneath the greening sod
 Is the moulded body of Albert Todd,

The artist, who painted dear Ruth Beatty,
 And also that gentle little Katy,
 Miss Kay Holloway she was to most.
 These two perished at their post
 When Captain Forssen's ocean liner,
 Owned by Harold O'Neal, a miner,
 Sank off the coast of the Isle of Wight,
 And only one survived the night,
 A preacher brave by the name of Starr
 Who ended his days on a trolley car.
 Among the dead was the actor Young,
 And three others whose praises loud were sung
 As Davis and Blanc and Madame Reich
 Who acted Othello without a hitch.
 And here is the tomb of one named Lee,
 A philosopher was our dear Lucy.
 And this one says Priscilla Boeshaar
 Who died at the wheel of a racing car.
 A statue erected to Ronald Thompson
 And his secretary, M. E. Kingston;
 These two financed by Harriet Eger,
 Whose donations were anything but meagre,
 Discovered new lands and even a sea.
 And here Doc. Adams, who once charged such a fee
 That he aroused the ire of gunman Reid,
 Who planted the Doc. for hollyhock seed.
 And here are Iceman Tillman, and Baker
 Schwartz.
 And Jeweler Walsh who sold fake quartz.
 A master surgeon, Miriam Young,
 Won fame by extracting a much diseased lung.
 And this is the resting place of Wright,
 Who proved to be a shining light
 On the newspaper owned by Dakin,
 And of Gertrude Clark, acclaimed for makin'
 A record in prime apple pies.
 And here is where Rena Aronson lies,
 The pianist famed far and wide,
 Who in sunny Paris died.
 Chester Cummings and Lois Reed
 Starred in the movie, Friends in Need,
 And afterwards perished in an aeroplane.
 Marcus Soutra was declared insane
 'Til proved otherwise by Florence Pease.
 They finally together began keeping bees,
 'Till they died in a bus driven by Gelfman,
 Who unhappily ran into advocate Dickerman.
 Pauline Fuller and Rachel Gladstone each
 Owned and operated a bathing beach,
 'Till a storm came up and washed them away
 And carried them off far down the bay.
 Ethel King and Helen Streeter
 Were borne away in their little two-seater.
 These two were politicians great,
 And prided themselves on being late
 To every meeting called by their foe,
 Myron Stepath, a speaker, you know,
 Who fell into the river one dark night.
 And here is she who won the right
 To be the queen of society.
 She dictated laws of propriety;
 Joe Hamilton, she is the one.

And here the rays of the setting sun
Fall on the grave of Julia Toole,
Who stumbled over a milking stool.

Luther Dickinson made a scandal
By eloping with O. Smith. The vandal
Was caught by Sherriff G. Shaw
And spent several days in the clutch of the law.

Genevieve Tomlinson Wallace,
Her last name was her solace,
When Ted went off to explore the moon
With Lionel Rodgers, to return soon,
Gen pined away, but Pomerantz Mints
Sustained her and Pomerantz Lints
Bound Ted's wounds when he returned
Much wiser, alone, and sunburned.
Richard Pranik and Milton Palmer,
'Tis doubted which one was the calmer,
Went to the jungle to hunt big game
But only did themselves much main.
Melvin Ransom was a bold, bad man,
Broad-shouldered, husky, a coat of tan—
From playing football in the Isle of Wight,
His quarterback was Edward Wright.
Fred Romanofsky, one cold March night,
Ventured out without a light.
Nevermore was Fred seen by mortal sight.
Adele Schorling au contraire
Perished in a lion's lair.

Edna Wood tried to rescue her.
She gained a hold on the lion's fur—
The beast objected strenuously
And that was the end of our Eddy.
Grace Caffrey was a famous cook
Who kept her husband on the hook.
His other name was Richard Davis.
His pet saying was "Lord save us."
He needed all help, divine or not,
For his wife kept him in water hot.
Dick was a famous orator
Until this female toreator
Captured him and silenced him.
To do all the talking was her whim.

Bertha Bausman and Betty Blackmun
Both aspired to wed a hackman,
Named Howard Delaney, though it is true
They had had other men in view.
But Howard, though he lost his money
And drove a hack, was still quite funny,
And Buddy and Betty's lives were sad,
And so they needed Howie bad.
He couldn't decide which one to choose,
For neither one would he willing lose,
'Til Frederick Hillman came along
And snatched up Buddy for a song.
And presently Howie's fortunes were proved,
Because in his hack one day he had moved
The earthly possessions of Alderman Knox,
Who was so pleased he gave Howie rocks,
(That's slang for dollars) which Howie invested

So wisely, that he later rested.
For he had noticed in all the papers

That Jimmy Hanchett was cutting capers
In the stock market with Andrew Reid,
For both of them had found a seed
That could be used to make folks leaner.
And, borrowing money of Louis Wiener,
Had called their product the fat woman's heaven,

Which, widely advertised by great Paul Levin,
Soon brought wealth to Jimmy and Andy,
And to Betty and Del came in quite handy.

But now prepare for something sterner
For this concerns our Mary Learner,
And Fredrick Kingsley, and Gertrude Hunter,
And Leo Pollin, the famous hunter,
And Frederick Hillman, rash and ranting,
Who in his store sold ties enchanting.
His oily tongue forced Gertrude to buy
For her husband, Frederick, a horrible tie.
And then because he wouldn't be chary,
He sent the tie to innocent Mary.
And when her husband, the fiery Leo,
Came home that night with a brand new Reo,
And found he also had to pay
For an expensive tie that very day,
Without waiting to hear our Mary's story,
He promptly kicked her into glory.
For as a punter he'd got the habit,
Though humbly beseeched by Dorothy
Abbott

To hold his temper and learn the truth,
But he wouldn't listen to her, forsooth,
Because she was just a maid, she said,
And that's the reason his wife is dead.

Under this stone lies Marion Breck,
Whom none but Bondi could hold in check.
He wedded her for thirty days
In the presence of Justice Isabel Mayes.
And then without a qualm, bigosh.
They lived on a farm with Mitchell Brosch,
And made their fortunes raising Holstein's
Which they sold in Chicago to Irving
Bernstein's

Slaughter house, where Franklin Barber
Served as most artistic carver.
The neighboring farm belonged to Adaskin,
(Viola, you know) who declined ever to askin'
Her neighbors, especially Helen Durgin,
Who would have come without much urgin';
And thus they started a neighborhood feud
Which was made all the worse by a silly dude,
Benjamin Selsky, who drove a dumb Ford
Across the pasture of Howard Munford.
Ben and Howard met one dark night
To end the feud in a dreadful fight,
But a maiden shy appeared on the scene
And demanded loudly what did they mean.
The maiden, she was Clara Carlin,
Was out seeking her pussy, her darlin'.
The gallants, captured by her wiles,
Searched and searched for many miles,
But all they found was a cow or two,
And so the feud began anew.
But before the battle had really started,

The warriors bold were suddenly parted.
For everyone of them, 'tis said,
Passed gently away in his bed.
For Ben, whose constitution was frail
From delivering the village mail,
Caught pneumonia and finally died,
But he spread the disease both far and wide.
The forbidding Viola and Howie, too,
And also Helen, who never knew
Just how the epidemic spread,
Were everyone of them quite dead.

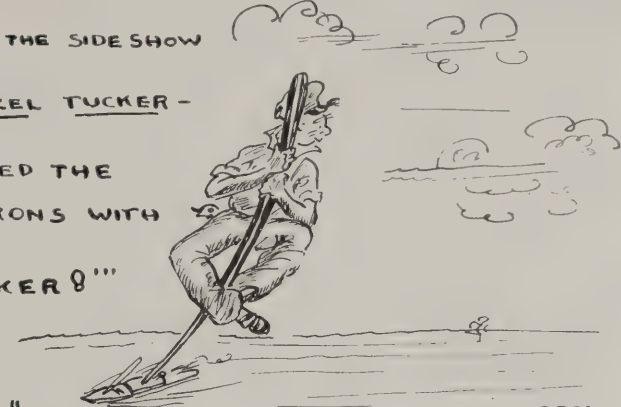

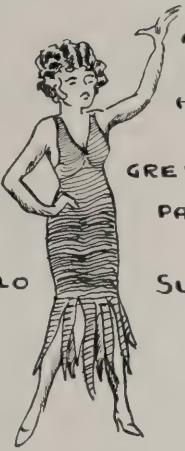

The Andrew circus here did die;
Aileen Andrew tried to defy
The laws and open her circus here,
Using for settings, each stone and bier.
The city fathers, Leon Theim
And Herbert Tillman forbade the scheme,
And ordered Aileen off the plot.
Yonder tombstone marks their lot.
Now circus folk are superstitious,
Although their fears do prove fictitious.
Hence Mary Langan held tight some soap
Wherever she walked the dizzy tight rope.
But here she forgot it, and looking down
From her great height above the town,
She dizzily dropped e'er her they could save,
And lightly fell into an open grave.
The bearded woman, Dotty Bancroft,
Had a job that was pretty soft.
E. Johnson attempted to rival her,
But with agile fists did Dot demur.
Together they fought with tooth and nail
'Til their beards were rent as though by hail.
And Aileen decided that neither could cheat her,
And gave the job to Muriel Streeter,
Who grew her beard from the original down
By applying an ointment from Barbara
Towne.
Barbara, it seems, had done quite well,
Although her secret she'll never tell.
For she and Carolyn Rixford, you know,
Made beards for ladies all the go.
Both she and Carolyn were there at the show
For they'd heard it was run by a Central grad,
Who'd helped promote the bearded fad.
But once they were there they found many more,
There were surely at least a half a score;
First Ned Marion, the human fly,
And Edna Luthgren, a famous spy,
Who'd come disguised as the former's wife
Little recking that here she'd end her life;
Then La Lancto, our Rio Rita.

Who warbled tunes, some sweet, some sweeter;
And Minnie Pomerantz who played the pianner
For Rita's songs while she munched a banana;
And at the side show was Hazel Tucker
Who greeted the patrons with "Hello, Sucker!"
Like Texas Guinan, famed of yore,
While Mortimer Kaplan barked at the door
Until his throat was pretty sore.
And in the ring, clad in purple panties,
Were Wm. Kammerman and Andrew
Hyfantis,
Who were riding horses at a fearful pace
In a thrilling Roman chariot race.
And here it was that the end began
For into the ring a Wild Woman ran.
'Twas Ethel Kenyon, with fanatic reformers,
Who'd vowed her vengeance on circus performers.
Quite carried away in excess zeal,
She cared not a straw for woe or weal,
But opened the cage where the lions were,
And though it is true they devoured her,
They also broke up our Aileen's show,
In fact they ate, for all we know,
All the performers and half the first row.

And here in a quiet, secluded spot,
We find the victims of a horrible plot,
Which had its source in Robert Luce
Who went to Canada to bring down moose.
But while he was there he found a Scout camp
Where Libbie Gardiner served as guiding lamp.
For Libbie's ambition in life, you know,
Was to teach the young idea to grow.
She formed her camp in the open spaces,
And captured all by her airs and graces.
Here Robert found her, enthroned in the woods,
And offered her all his worldly goods.
And here while he told her he loved her much,
Who should appear but outraged Dutch.
('Tis Elizabeth Mendenhall, I mean, you know.)
With flashing eyes she bade Luce go,
And reminded Libbie in accents terse
She'd vowed herself Humanity's Nurse,
And wouldn't desert for love or wealth
Her summer camp of pleasure and health.
Unable to face the fire in her eye,
Poor Robert retreated and later did die,

While Libbie went mad and later passed out,
A victim of Dutch and tremors and doubt.
In another spot lies a happy pair,
Howard Field and his wife so rare;
He married Barbara Sellars, it reads,
And both lived a life of kindly deeds.
He was a sea captain, bold and bluff,
But with lovely Bobbie he was never rough.
They lived down the road from a Central grad.

Who sold gifts and tea that wasn't half bad.
'Twas Doris Kenefick who ran the place,
Assisted considerably with charm and grace,
By Francis Macintosh who collected a fee
While Evelyn Kendall made the tea.
Here Howie and Barbara often dropped in,
And at other times thought it no sin
To stop down the road at a quiet booth
Where Charlotte Grodsky told the truth
About the future by reading psalms,
For which the public gave her alms.
At home Barbara found a place for a friend,
For Bessie Silver her clothes did mend.
And Marjorie Washburn acted as cook,
In fact on the subject she wrote a book.
And Doris Goodrich washed the dishes,
Though only in fun, for she had riches,
And only worked for Howie and Bob

Because she'd always been used to a job.
So here they lived in peace and content,
And when they died, to heaven they went.
And here's the signal to open your eyes
With something more than mild surprise.
For Harry Dickinson ran a college
Where Ellen Wellman dispensed knowledge.
'Tis said that Harry never saw it;
That is why he asked someone to draw it,
And Katherine Leahy got the job.
Her picture made poor Harry sob,
Because although he ran the college,
He'd never had a taste of knowledge.
But Rowena Barton gave him new life
When she agreed to be his wife,
And Beatrice Willard cheered them on,
For through his college she had gone.

And now the pair has reached the end,
And so have we, if you'll attend.
They passed from the graveyard with footsteps light
And so that's all from us tonight.

ELEANOR TILTON
EVELYN SHOOB
DONALD CROWTHER

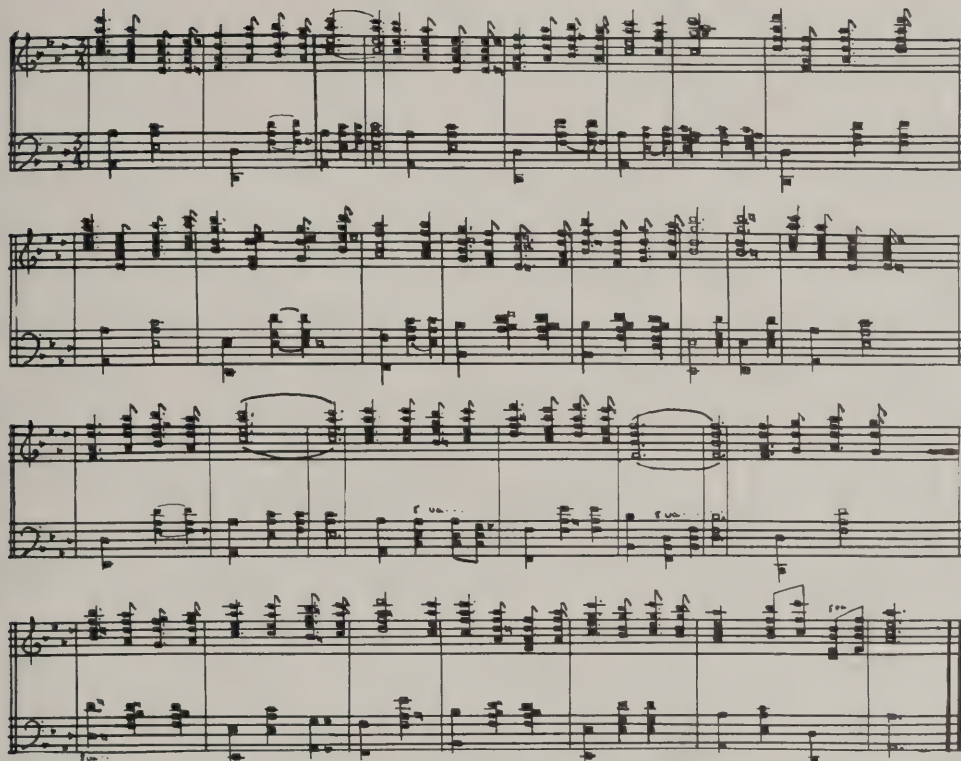

Prophecy of the Prophets

At the home for the mad at old Northampton,
Of their former selves now merely phantoms,
Sit three once prominent Centralites
Whose minds are stripped of intelligent light.
Don Crowther sits here with the grin of a boob,
Opposite him, sits Evelyn Shoob,
While here, O woe, stands Eleanor Tilton Whose keen mind and senses have long been wilted.
But come, let's hark and hear their jibbering
While each his sad tale is delivering.
"Alas see me," groaned Donald Crowther,
Who married a wife and learned to loathe her,
"I mopped and swept, and washed the dishes,
And cooked fine food that was most delicious,
While one attraction held my wife;
To her, bridge was the staff of life.
My prime was spent in playing hockey,
Until one day a player did knock me
With his stick so hard upon my head,
That since, my brains have been quite dead."

E. Shoob then chirped up in reply.
And on these words you may rely.
"Of a co-ed school I was the dean,
Until one boy did turn my bean.
Believe me, for this is no myth,
An erring lad by the name of Smith,
Impetuous son of Edwin E.
Whose mark was never higher than E;
This obstinate child my mind made sore,
Till now my brain will work no more."
"But worse," quote Tillie, "has been my plight:
To use long words was my delight,
And nothing more was I demanding
Than talk to those not understanding.
With words in "osity" and "tion",
I easily rivaled the learned Johnson,
Until one day I unhappily knew
I had learned the dictionary through and through.
I could no longer stand this strain
And so became quite, quite insane."

Farewell Central High

Words and Music by ELEANOR CLARK

Central High, we bid you fond adieu;

Many are the times we'll think of you.

Happy days of youth we spent along your halls of fame,

Always trying ne'er to mar your name.

Now that we are through, our paths must part,

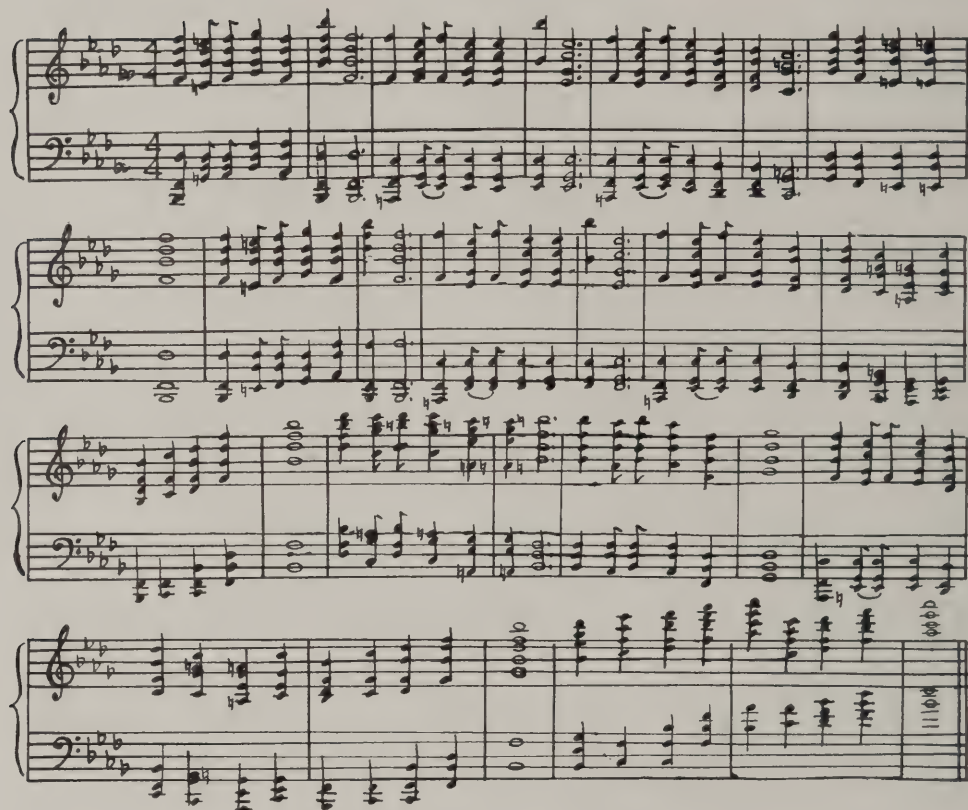

'Though you'll always linger in our hearts.

All our lives your praises and your virtues we will tell.

'30 bids you, Central High, farewell.

Our Alma Mater

Words and Music by DOROTHY McCANN

Central, this song we're singing
In deepest praise of thee.
Thy name shall live forever,
Ever and a day,
And as thy sons recall
Blissful days with thee,
Once again thy name we'll honor,
Mother of us all.

Central, this class will promise
Ne'er to forget thee e'er,
And to uphold thy teachings always,
Mother of us all.

Presentations of the Class of 1930

DICK DAVIS—Is Dick in the asylum? Turn around Dick and let the inmates have a glimpse of the handsomest boy in our solar system. (By the way children, he is also class Rudy Vallee). Here is a uke for you to plunk your way to fame.

BLANC—Where's that noise? oh yes, just as I expected. Who could mistake the wavy locks of our class orator who is obstreperously expounding his theories, as usual. But getting back to the winsome locks, it does seem that they're just incorrigible—really no better than so much shredded wheat. You've no doubt tried all the preparations on the curb to obtain that well groomed appearance. We, without regard for expense, have purchased for you this paper weight, which we know will keep your hair down.

PHIL HART—Like Falstaff, Philip Hart is not only witty in himself, but the cause of wit in other men. Every time he cracks a smile in the lunchroom, Chapin cracks a plate. Philip, step up here and receive what is probably the most stupendous aggregation of witless witticisms ever compiled by the brain (so to speak) of man—a collection of all the brilliant remarks made to date by that perspiring humorist, Meyer White. If your humor is getting too funny, and the lunchroom objects, borrow from this.

RAY JALBERT—May I ask the orchestra to play a well known oriental strain while Senor Ramon Novarro Jalbert hula-hulas his way through admiring throngs to the platform? Raymond, you are unanimously declared the class terpsichorean artist par excellence. All you need to complete your career is a suitable costume. We have, therefore, called upon Richard Blanc to contribute from his last (we suppose) visit to the barber, this beautiful though tangled shrub of shredded wheat. You may now safely compete with the leading dancers of Hawaii and all points East.

OSCAR FINE—What is that spot of color I see before me? Can it be a sunset, or is it flaming youth come to life? Dear me, it's only the blushing countenance of that fine young feller, Oscar Fine. That's fine, Fine; step up here and find your fine—nothing less than a cool dab of cold cream which, we hope, will be sufficient to quench the fire in those fine cheeks next time you're asked to explain your absence from the Central High School Senate.

AMEDEO BONDI—We see by the papers that you are engaged in activities and correspondence enough to make the harassed life of Al Capone seem a mere afternoon's siesta in comparison. We have searched in vain for a fitting tribute to your life of service to Central, but all we can say is "That's the racket,"—so here it is.

FLOYD HODGE—We haven't much time, but if someone could waft Floyd Hodge gently in our direction, we'd like a word with him. No hurry Floyd, a man with your propensity to procrastination simply can't be rushed. Can he girls? We understand that Floyd's need for the invigoration of fresh air makes it impossible for him to be in school as much as he would otherwise like. Here, Floyd, is a little phial of pure oxygen. Have a sniff whenever you feel inclined to weaken.

ALBERT TODD—What is that gentle fluttering we detect among the ladies on our right? And our word, the very teachers seem to feel it! Ah yes, Albert Todd. What can be the secret of that popularity? Step up here, signior, and let's have a look at you. This, children, is a real phenomenon—a youth at once the most popular and the nerviest in the class. We don't know how you achieve this miracle, Albert, but it must take some bull-throwing. Accordingly, we present you with this Spanish grammar, that you may practise your art in its native tongue.

DON CROWTHER—Now for a man of solid girth and active mind. Sit down Connor, we don't mean you. 'Tis Don Crowther, president, scholar, hockey player (oh well, he had a stick), and budding heavyweight. We mean, Don, we called you up here in all seriousness to warn you against that coming event which casts its future shadow. Beware of over-indulgence now, and have a Lucky.

RENA ARONSON AND GALE FORSSSEN—We have asked the school to suspend all operations for three minutes so that Rena Aronson can snatch the time to be with us. Hold your breath, while things get on without her. Rena, you've been in practically everything in this school, but Forssen's Ford. So spare your blushes Gale, and give Rena the one novelty left to her.

BETTY BLACKMUN—There's a great popular demand for Queen Elizabeth Blackmun here, with or without her Essex. Betty, it's a tough racket, but we wish you success. 'Tis true, 'tis pity and pity 'tis, 'tis true that you've sometimes missed your man. But here's a charm, and we hope it works. Pin it on your next victim; it's an N. W. M. P. badge.

LOIS REED AND CHET CUMMINGS—We read in As You Like It that Rosalind's lover, dressed like a hunter, came to the forest of Arden to kill her heart. It sounds silly, but it makes us think of Chet Cummings and Lois Reed. We can't very well separate them, so will they kindly step up here just as they are? Lois; "such men are dangerous," and Chet, "I see love hath made thee a tame snake,"—but here's something that will give you both hope. There's nothing so helpful to young lovers as this practical advice to be found in this complete edition de luxe of the works of Dorothy Dix. Read it, and bless you, my children.

BARBARA SELLARS—There seems to be nothing more we can do about Barbara Sellars. She has practically everything—scholarship, popularity, athletic ability, good looks. All we can say Bobby, is that you're a winner, and if you don't mind, we'd like to pin a blue ribbon on you.

VICTOR POLLOCK—We didn't mean to mention Vic Pollock. But Miss Olive Palmer, exclusive radio artist for Palm Olive Soap has sent us a special autographed copy of her renowned surprise booklet on Keeping The School Boy Comp'exion the Wor'd Over, practically begging us to bestow it on Vic as the supreme example of Palm Olive's art. We understand you're travelling with rough sailors like Howie Field this summer, Vic. Don't neglect those rosy cheeks just to look wolfish like Howie.

HARRY DICKINSON—The exercises are now almost over, so there is a bare possibility that

Harry Dickinson may have arrived. In that case, will you stroll up here, Harry? This is a moment that not only we but you yourself have long awaited. We hear that you're sometimes behind time. Here's a clock that you can keep behind you.

PRISCILLA BOE-HAAR—Efficiency, thy name is Boeshaar. Priscilla, you've been on this stage enough to know your way up alone. So let her go, To'ld. We know that hardly any of the world's greatest efficiency experts, even Kathleen Coe and Harry Dickinson, can compete with you in practical exemplifications of such wholesome mottoes as "Do It Now" and "Let's Go." Words, breath, even all visible signs of life fail us in contemplation of your virtues. So pardon us while, gasping with admiration, we bestow on you this crown emblazoned with that inspiring maxim which we, alas, have never followed: Labor vincit omnia.

BUD HILLMAN—Bud Hillman, I'm sorry to tear you away, but your mother just phoned for you to take Miss Clark and Miss Anthony and Mr. Smith up on Mount Holyoke for a picnic. And when you're through, will you please call for Miss Woodbury at Salem and leave her at School for the next P. T. A. meeting? And then your sister says for you to wash the car and drive her to the Longmeadow Country Club for tea. And while you're waiting, will you dash off a poster for the Trolleyman's Ball? And, Charlie Derrick wants you to call for him and his girl when the Asia closes. And keep up your marks, too, you lazy bum. Now before you go, just snatch this chauffeur's cap from me, "for know you not you ought not to walk upon a laboring day without the sign of your profession?"

Will of the Class of 1930

We, the Class of 1930, in the year of our Lord, one thousand nine hundred and thirty, and in the foundation of Central High School, the eighty ninth, being in full and complete possession of our faculties of mind, yet, considering the uncertainty of our lives and to the end that we may leave the Central High School in good standing, do hereby declare, publish, and assert this to be our last will and testament.

Firstly: To William C. Hill, our highly esteemed and respected principal, the Class of 1930, leaves a mathematical contraption, pertaining to addition, subtraction, multiplication, and division, to facilitate the distribution of tickets in forthcoming Central High School productions.

Secondly: To all pupils of Central High who have had study periods under the reign of Mr. Arthur C. Curtis, we, with all due solemnity, do leave the sum of one tenth of one cent to all said occupants, who, during the long and tedious period, deem it necessary to wander in the spacious domain of 323, as an endowment for the installation of rubber heels.

ARTICLE I. To all future presidents, and especially to Stewart King, Donald Crowther leaves his highly prized executive ability and gourmandish habits to be employed as thoroughly but certainly not more efficiently.

ARTICLE II. Barbara Sellars and Kathryn Holloway leave their charm, good-sportsmanship, and in fact their general all around qualities to their popular understudies, Ruth Ehrlich and Naomi Hall.

ARTICLE III. "Howie" Field and Sherwood Adams, the chalk and rubber band fiends, leave an edition of their latest book entitled, "Intricacies of Throwing and Its Relation to Poor Aim," to their bright red target, "Vic" Ehre, so that he may profit by the experiences of the above mentioned pair.

ARTICLE IV. To Alice Blodgett, "Dutch" Mendenhall leaves her unsurpassed ability to make friends, her colloquial talents, and her lovable personality in the hope that Alice may be able to use them as successfully as "Dutch" has in former times.

ARTICLE V. Olive Palmer and Paul Oliver, represented by Ruth Beatty and Vic Pollock, bequeath the beauties of Palmolive, which preserves that school girl complexion, to Edward Hoffman.

ARTICLE VI. Harriett Eger, the champion gabber of the surrounding sixteen counties, leaves her crank to Olivia Smith "in case" she runs down.

ARTICLE VII. Evelyn Shoob and Eleanor Tilton, those girls with the three decker brains, leave some of their surplus intelligence to Red Macauley, that boy with the sticking qualities, in the hope that he may, within the next decade, pave his way to the graduation alter.

ARTICLE VIII. Kay Coe and Ray Jalbert, our two date hounds, leave their date books to Sam Howe and Dot Crewe in the hope that the remaining pages of the aforementioned books will satisfy their needs.

ARTICLE IX. To Ted Peterson, Douglas Ley, and Hervey Smith, "Bud" Todd bequeaths his advertising abilities, providing that they can make up for "Bud's" artistic ability by a still greater gift of gab.

ARTICLE X. Gale Forssen, that bashful taciturn youth, leaves his place in the affections of Mr. E. Smith to Harvey Violi. We hope Harvey won't abuse the bequest.

ARTICLE XI. Roger Moore, direct from the haberdashery, and "Del" Delaney that smooth young gentleman, request that some of their qualities be handed down to some slovenly underclassman. We are told that

David Miley might readily make use of them.

ARTICLE XII. Richard Blanc leaves his foolishly simple and infantile humor to any underclassman, who is most anxious to adapt himself to "Dicky's" eccentricities.

ARTICLE XIII. Lois Reed, that girl with the come hither look in her eyes, (we know for we've had experience) leaves her coquettish airs and her collection of power puffs to "Mackie" Delaney. Lois hopes that "Mackie" will never have to resort to a flour barrel.

ARTICLE XIV. Harry Dickinson leaves the source of his supply of unlimited excuses to account for his many and noticeable absences to Ed. Kelly in the hope that E.I. may find some other worthy recipient on his departure from Central's sacred portals.

ARTICLE XV. We are sure that two of the underclassmen with very noticeable heads, namely Zenos Scott, the flaming youth, and John Knott, with hair like quills upon the fretful porpentine, will be glad to accept all advice left them. Our brilliant chem students will prescribe a dye for Zenos, while any one of our "Stacomb" students will give John information as to the sticking qualities of hair tonic.

ARTICLE XVI. Priscilla Boeshaar, dubbed the most efficient girl in the Class of 1930, leaves her overflowing stock of clever ideas to Ruth Nelson.

ARTICLE XVII. To the highly beloved faculty of this best school in the solar system, we present our intellectual abilities to be distributed among the most deserving members of the Class of 1930½.

ARTICLE XVIII. The expiring Class of 1930, along with its kindest regards, leaves its ghost to Mr. E. Smith, so that he may have evidence for future skeptics.

ARTICLE XIX. We hereby appoint Miss Bertha Davis and Mr. Edwin Smith to be our legal executors.

In witness whereof, we have signed, declared, and published this instrument to be our last will and testament. On this eleventh day of June, nineteen hundred and thirty.

Signed: DONALD CROWTHER

Signed, sealed, published, and declared by the above named president, as and for the last will and testament of the Class of 1930, in the presence of us, the undersigned, who, at his request, have drawn up and signed as witness to the same.

FOOTBALL

The football season has opened. Girls, choose your football heroes now. We wish to make it understood, however, that we do not guarantee that you will have them throughout the football season. Football is football you know.

Tul: "So's your old man."

Tut-tut: "Don't say that. Say your male parent is in a similar predicament."

LIEBERRY NOTES

Here's one for those who dote on ghost stories. The name of this book is, "The White Spectre" written by Fuller Gloom. I'll try to tell you a wee bit of the story. The story deals in the adventures of the hero who has been captured and placed in a lonely cave, the floor of which is covered with the victims of the Spectre. He is standing there when a clammy hand touches him and—well, just read the book yourself!

WHO'S WHO IN CENTRAL

GES WHO

What Centralite does not know Ges? You surely must have encountered him at one time or another wandering about the corridors surrounded by just swarms of girls.

Ges has been a student at Central High for many years, in fact, for seven years. He holds the title of Central's most clinging friend.

Although Ges is graduating this year, he expects to take a three year P. G. course. That's the right school spirit Ges!

Teacher: "Why is it that you're always at the bottom of the class?"
Pupil: "It doesn't make any difference to me. They teach the same at both ends."

DID YOU NEVER?

Did you never

Leave home at 8.05

And arrive at school

To find

That it was just 8.00

Did you never?

Teacher: "Why are you late?"

Pupil: "I didn't think that the bell would ring before I got here."

If you do not like what is printed in the Discorder speak to the faculty adviser, Art Discourteous.

SHE WOOD

She Wood! Where have I heard that name before? Excuse, where haven't I heard that name before? SHE is just about the most popular girl at Central.

In just a few words I should like to tell you some of the things which She has accomplished. Chairman of the Junior Prom Committee—you know, the one nobody went to—; earned the Excellent Scholarship medal (E stands for excellent); President of the N. G. Club which held its first and last meeting April 1st

SHE is leaving us this year to study fizology at the Institute of Fizology at N. Y.

Q—What is considered the best looking building in Springfield?

A—I'll bite, why?

Q—Why do we have assemblies?

A—To get acquainted with the fellow, of course.

Q—Why are we compelled to take two years of gym?

A—This allows ample time to do all your homework.

Q—Why do we have the twenty minute period before school?

A—Not the pink tea kind.

Q—What does Mr. Hill mean by "society?"

BY THEIR SAYINGS YE SHALL KNOW THEM

Mr. Fenner: "W-e-ll."

Miss Scott: "Don't you think so?"

Mr. E. Smith: "Be quiet, children."

Mr. L. Smith: "It's like this—er—er."

There was a young fellow named Donny
Who had a complexion quite bonny,
But in running his class
He got wrinkles "en masse,"
And we had to get cold cream for Donny.

A great orator was our Dick Blanc.
On talking he was a sure crank;
His diction astounded,
With words he abounded,
He'd talk us to death, would Dick Blanc.

In our class was an optimist, Will;
With money our coffers he'd fill.
But no one would pay;
When he came, each would say,
"I'll pay you some other time, Will."

Class of '30 had a member named Bobbie;
Whatever she did was just nobby.
When those eyelashes waved,
The school then was saved.
Yes, a cute little girl was our Bobbie.

MY TRIP TO THE COUNTRY

One Fine day as I was walking along, I came to a tunnel. Now a tunnel is a Holloway and very dark. Suddenly I stubbed my toe and saw Starrs. When I had recovered, I looked up to see my Reich friends with their little girl Manning a railroad handcar. I hopped on and we went country-ward. Talking business on the way, I disclo-ed my financial status; and when I asked my friend for a Bondi gave me a Blanc piece of paper. When we came to the farmhouse, the Dorman asked what we wanted. "The Gardiner is in the Field, and the Millar is in the Barnes," he said. However, we Eger-ly entered the house, and after several Knox at the library door, we went in to find the Silver-Smith Reed-ing with his Tooles lying beside him. My friend told him that he wanted to buy a cow. "I can't let you have a cow, but I'll give you a Caffrey," he said.

"Odette me one," cried my friend's little girl. Suddenly we heard several shots, and the Cook entered, crying, "Come into the Sellars. There is a Hunter in the Wood nearby, and it is very dangerous."

After we had come out, we surveyed the scenery; and my friend cried, "What a Hillman! Whose is it?"

"It belongs to us all," said a Young man. "Here nob e and Boeshaar equal."

My friend taking offense, was about to reply hotly, when his Coe-partner and better half said, "Don't Dickerman, see the Cranes over there."

Some new-comers then arrived, and while my friend was saying, "Howe-do-you-do," I left to go back to Towne and to Mendenhall my children's clothes.

(With apologies to Browning)

We pupils entered Latin class

With ever so slow a tread.

Behind the desk the teacher sat;

Deep in a book was her head,

With eyes half-shut, you've seen the way,

As innocent as could be.

But to every person comes the thought

She's going to call on me.

Then gleams her eye; the bell has rung;

Straightway her book she opes.

Not a sound excites that still, still room,

The death-bed of all high-hopes.

I knew it, she would call on me,

But when all in great thanks have shared,

With lowering eye and trembling lip

I whisper, "Not prepared."

A DIRGE

Calm and peaceful was the room,
When there came within my ken
The sight of a teacher, staring hard;
The chill of gloom possessed me then.

Chorus

For I was eating life-savers,
Life-savers by the score,
And in my desk behind a book
Were many a dozen more.

A yellow slip was in his hand;
I knew my doom was sealed.
Then how I longed for mother's home!
For the 2.30 bell had pealed.

Chorus

For I had eaten life-savers,
Life-savers by the score.
While in my desk behind a book
Were many a package more.

In that chamber, dark and gloomy,
With the shadows hovering round,
Many pals were sitting near me;
They had eaten, too, I found.

Chorus

We'd all been eating life-savers,
Life-savers by the score,
While in our desks, behind some books,
Were many a package more.

So every under classman dear,
Who would like to graduate soon,
Look in the desk of a Senior
Up in that great big room.

Chorus

For we have eaten life-savers,
Life-savers by the score.
And when you search our desks, you'll find
The old wrappers left of yore.

"You never saw a police dog that looked like that thing."

"Why didn't you slam him?"
"Well, this was only a sham-pooh."

How many apples did Adam and Eve eat?
Some say Eve ate and Adam too.
A total of ten.
We figure it out differently:
Eve eight and Adam eight also.
It totals 16.
But if Eve 8 and Adam 82,
Surely the total will be 90.
However Central students reason thus:
Eve 81 and Adam 82—total 163.
But what could be simpler than:
If Eve 81 and Adam 812, the total is 893.
Nevertheless it is correct that
Eve 814 Adam 8124 Eve—total 8,938.
Our final calculation, however,
Gives a total of 82,056,
Because Eve 814 Adam and Adam
81242 oblige Eve.
S'funny what a high school education will do for one.

Some folks live to a ripe old age and others
step on the gas.

"Why do you call me Marcelle?"
"'Cause I don't expect you to be permanent."

"Why did you break up with that school teacher?"
"I broke a date one night, and she demanded a written excuse from home."

He burned along the boulevard—
He burned across the hill—
He burned into a trolley-car—
We s'pose he's burning still.

Tut: "So your father is a Southern planter?"
Tut-Tut: "Yep, he's an undertaker in Atlanta."
